

A Magical Adventure

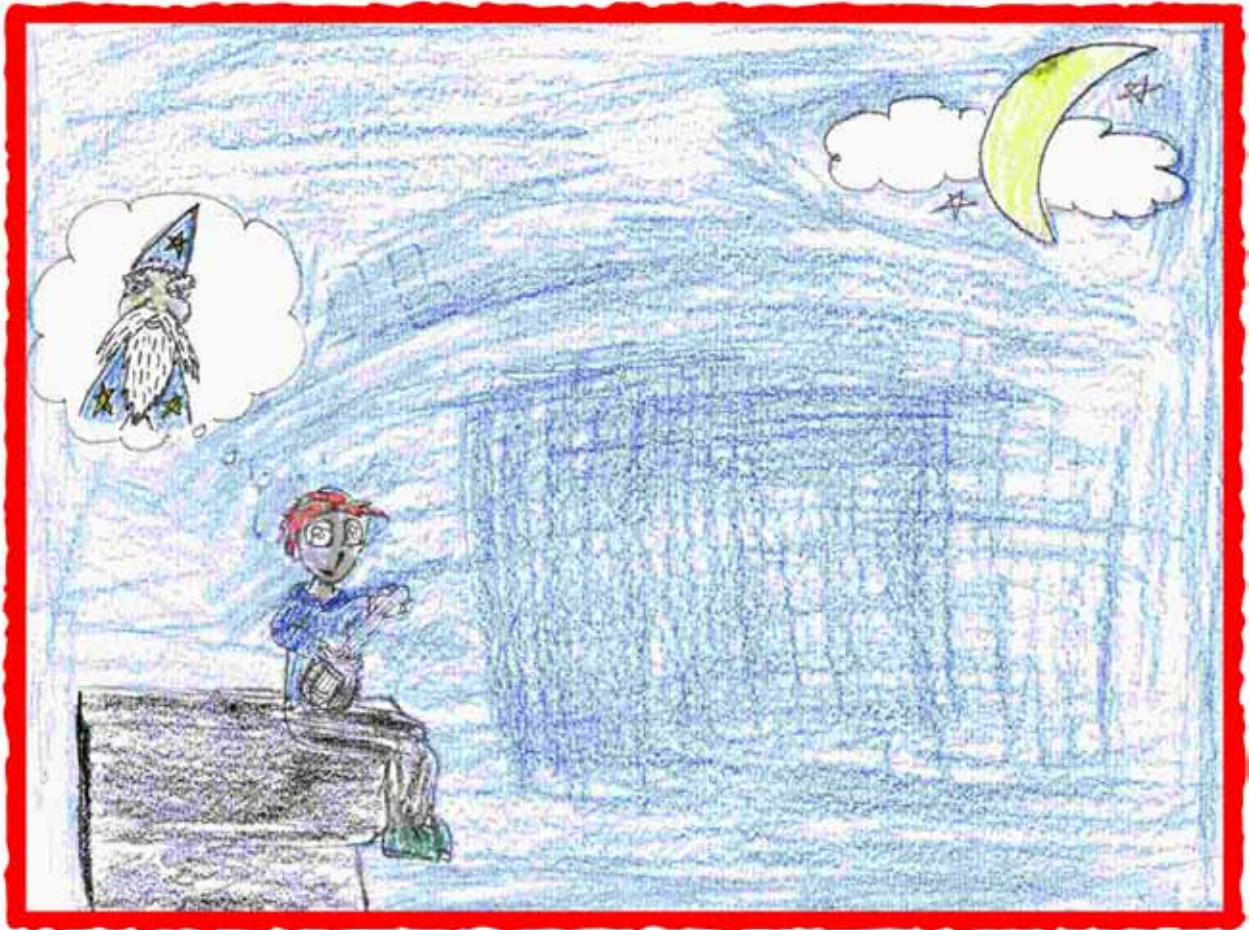

By Keven B.,
Bryan St. Pierre
Bianca Scatcherd

Once in a poor little village, there was a little boy. His name was Junior Jovi and he liked to play the banjo.

Each time he played his banjo he remembered the legend his grandpa had told him.

“Once in this very village, there lived a sorcerer or, as you now call them shamans. He had a talent for banjos.” His grandpa would say. “ Just like you!”

“The shaman had magical powers and with these magical powers he created a magical banjo.

Everybody in the village wanted the banjo. The shaman was not happy, so he hid the banjo so that nobody would find it.

The legend says that the banjo still exists.”

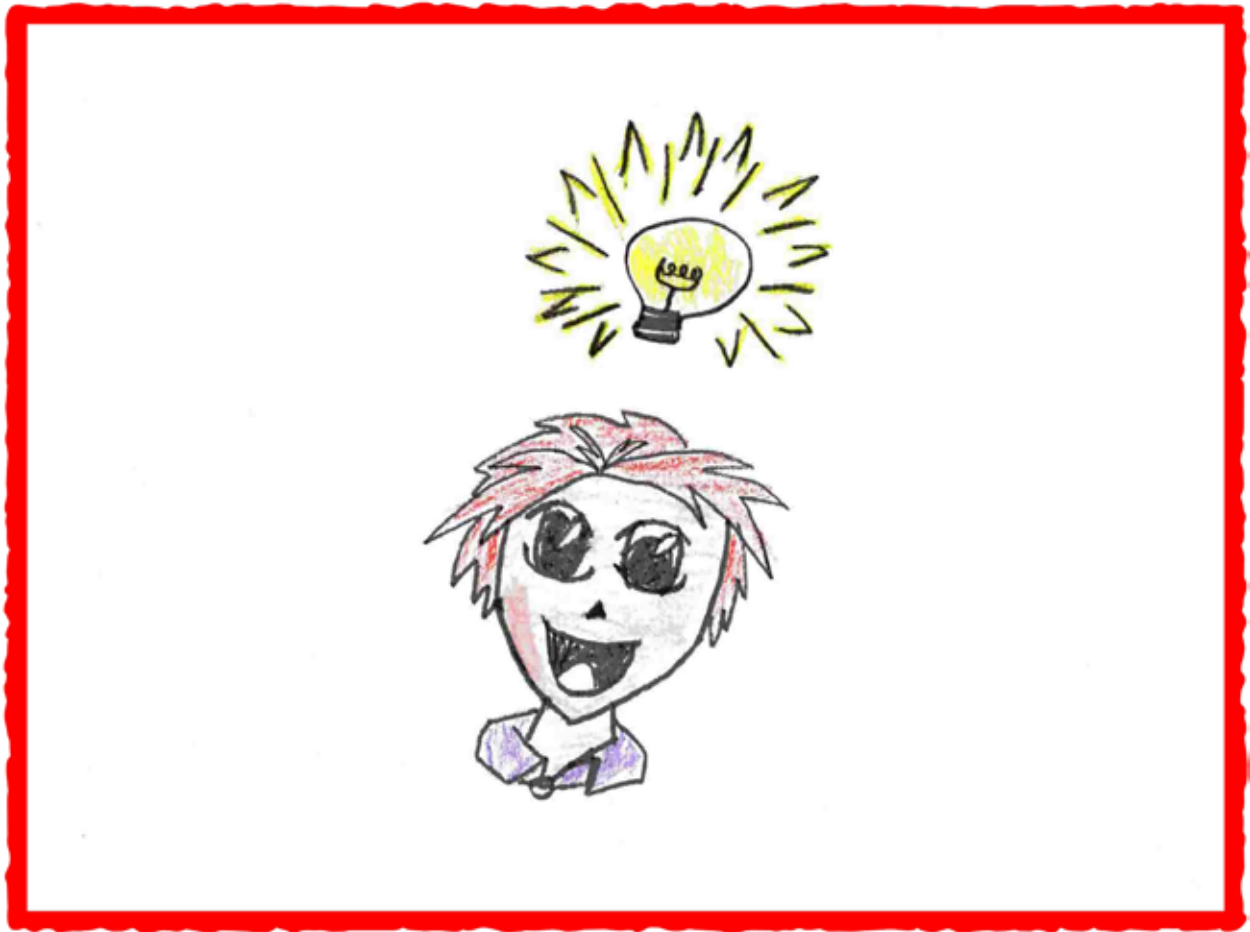

So one day, Junior went on an adventure to find the magic banjo.

He went over the hills, over the mountains, across the seas. After a long time, Junior Jovi finally found the magic banjo.

“I have an idea,” he said, “I will create a band called Banjovi!”

Junior Jovi came back, created the band Banjovi and became very rich and famous.

